A busy man is George

BY TERRI RUHDE

All Boone Campus students know George Silberhorn, and know what a busy man he is. He keeps himself busy with the activities that keep him on the go. One of these activities is visiting high schools.

Silberhorn visits high schools in the 11 county district that DMACC represents. The only time he goes out of this district to visit high schools is when counselors specifically invite him to visit their school.

"Jefferson is a good example," Silberhorn commented. "They aren't in our district, but I go there to talk to them." Silberhorn said he visits 20 high schools in the district and 12 high schools out of the district by request.

Silberhorn talks to the high school counselor and any interested Juniors and Seniors. "I ask them to fill out a card with their name, address, and area of interest," he said. He then answers any of the questions they might have about such things as admissions, financial aid, sports, intramurals, activities, new programs, or new requirements. He also sends these students information about the Boone and Ankeny campuses.

"Sometimes I take students from DMACC with me when I visit high schools," he added. "It gives them a chance to go back to their old high school and visit with friends. I take some of the teachers on the staff, too. It gives them an opportunity to meet their counterparts in high school. John Doran, Vivian Brandmeyer, and Pat Theiben have all gone with me."

As to how often he makes these visits, Silberhorn says he goes during the Fall Quarter and then again in the Spring Quarter. "I go during the Fall Quarter and then again in the Spring Quarter. I try to be on campus on Tuesdays and Thursdays. I also try to avoid registration times. I try to be here at the college to help with that."

Silberhorn says it takes about ten days out of the quarter to make the visits. "I schedule four or five schools a day, usually finishing up all the visits within three weeks."

If there are any conflicts, he reschedules the visits and makes them up at the end of the scheduled days. George also goes back for special presentations.

Silberhorn visits high schools to provide an information service to high school counselors and students. Does he enjoy visiting high schools?

"Sure! It gives me a chance to meet high school counselors and meet the students before they get to the college," he says. "It gives me a chance to take out new viewbooks and information about new programs to the counselors and meet the students. It also gives me a chance to get out of the office once in awhile."

To avoid fines, students must be aware of the parking lot regulations for the DMACC, Boone Campus.

Temporary parking permits are also available from the business office and must be obtained when students arrive on campus.

Job tips for PBL

The Boone Campus Phi Beta Lambda heard about job prospects for secretaries during the group's meeting on Nov. 18.

Vicki Peterson, a graduate of the DMACC correspondence secretarial program in 1977, gave first-year secretarial students tips on how to be interviewed, how to conduct an interview, and how they should dress and behave to give the best impression to prospective employers.

The group elected its new officers for the 1982-83 year. They are Chris Knight, secretary; Pam Hagemann, vice president; Katie Pepper, president; Diane McCool, treasurer, and Luann Lundberg, reporter.

Lots of stamina needed to keep this patient alive

By LINDA ESSERT

After successfully completing CPR on ResusciAnnie for 48 hours, the patient expired.

However, her dying was not unexpected, as she is a dummy on which Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation is practiced, and the event was the CPR marathon held on Boone Campus to feature the importance of the public knowing the techniques practiced.

Over 35 people signed up to help the cause, with a few others who dropped in for a few minutes to give the others a needed break.

The operation was held at Boone Campus, but Annie did not get out and around on Monday night when she was present at the Boone Bears Basketball game, cheering the teams on (or were they cheering her on?)

Later that same night, she was taken to Lynn's Lounge where people continued performing CPR with her as the patient.

A nostalgic trip for Rec Club group

By JEFF THORNBURG

It was the last time for Bill Alley's band to play at Diamond Mills in Iowa City, and Rec Club members were on hand for the event.

The club took a road trip to watch the band usher out a period in its professional life, and had a good time into the bargain.

Those attending from Boone Campus included Pam Marnin, Fred Chesney, Marilyn McGinty, Jeff Thornburg, Bill and Judy Alley, Linda Hammer, Mary Mannat and her sister, Ann, who is a former Boone Campus student.

(The group met Mary Mannat's sister, who is a former Rec Club member from Boone Campus, in Brookland in order that Mary could take her laundry home).

In addition, there were six women and two men from the Ankeny Campus in the group.

Aside from the bumps which Marilyn McGinty received while dancing, and the bumps which Fred Chesney narrowly escaped while escorting the Mannat sisters to Hardensee's, the night had a good time.

The group returned to the motel around 2 a.m. and listened to all the jokes that Fred could remember.

On Sunday morning a potluck was held at the pool to reminisce over the night's activities.

The consensus was in agreement with Bill Alley who said it was "a good road!"

Door prize offered

The Boone Campus Recreation Club is awarding a $20 prize to the First place winner of Boone Campus' first "Decorate Your Office Door" contest for faculty and staff.

Each door is to be decorated in a Christmas theme, and will be judged on originality, attractiveness and creativity.

Door judging will take place Thursday, Dec. 16 at 2 p.m.

What will they do?

By COLETTE GUNNINK

Recreation students were asked their plans after graduation and why they decided to pursue the field of recreation.

LORI POWERS: I will do my practicum in Perry Lutheran Home. I want to work in day-care with children. Boone has a good program and it was the line of work I wanted.

EVA VAUGHN: I will do my practicum in the Independence Mental Institution. I will go to ISU or UNI for undergraduate recreation. I want to work with emotionally or physically abused children.

ROBIN WEBB: I want to open a day care center in Boone or Jefferson.

PAM MARNIN: I want to go to NMSU in Recreation and Physical Education, then find a job in P.E. I went into recreation because of the diversity of the field.

RAN NICHOLS: I plan to go to UNI for therapeutic recreation, then find a job in ISU or ISU and get a job in community recreation. I was interested in sports and games; I like organizing activities and working with people. I chose it because it is a promising field with plenty of opportunities.

RON UHLENKAMP: I will go to ISU for my bachelor degree. Recreation is the easiest way to do both.

SCOTT LINDELL: I would like to get a job in community recreation or go to ISU for my bachelor degree. Recreation is a good program because there is always a need and there are openings available.

CINDY DRAFER: I will go to ISU or get a job in municipal parks recreation. I always liked being involved in community recreation. I wanted a career when the kids grew up.

JENNY JEWELL: I plan on going to ISU for my bachelor degree, maybe. I entered the field to make people have a good time and for the money.

Boone, la
A real treat—CSN concert

By LINDA ENSELY

The late 1960-1970s protest era left its indelible mark in music, a mark still visible in the music of Crosby, Stills and Nash, recently in concert at Hilton Coliseum in Ames promoting the release of their latest album, "Daylight Again."

A six-man backup band consisting of two drummers, two keyboardists, and bass and rhythm guitarists provided the instrumental backdrop for the trio’s delicate and deliberate vocal harmonies, interlaced with the piano and guitars of David Crosby, Steven Stills and Graham Nash.

The hard-driving rock of "Love the One You’re With,” "Carry On,” Marrakesh Express,” "Chicago,” Southern Cross” and Steven Stills—Buffalo Springfield’s "For What It’s Worth," was mixed with the mellow accusations of "The Lee Shore," "To the Last Whale,” "Cathedral," "Guinevere," the Beatles’ "Blackbird,” and others, characterizing the sound that has made Crosby, Stills and Nash distinctive since their formation in 1968.

Some groups make fatal mistakes in concerts, repeating the same old tired songs, the same old tired way that made them famous years ago, boring themselves and the audience.

Some groups experiment with new styles, perhaps quiet songs that most audiences won't hear, like exuberant in their own revue to listen.

Some groups assume the best way to excite an audience is by keeping them waiting, either eating up time with another group or starting the show excessively late and then blowing everyone’s brain with high volume.

Although only five songs have hit the "Top 40," their compositions were intimately familiar to the majority of the audience, and though very little new material was performed, each song rang with a freshness and a feeling as if it had been written only yesterday instead of a decade ago.

Gentle harmonies could have easily been lost to crowd noise in the Coliseum, but the enraptured audience flowed into the far corners of the noise in the Coloseum, but the enraptured audience flowed..."I Love It Loud." Paul is next with his heavy-metal styled love song called "I Still Love You." The style here is the same as his other love songs from previous LP’s. He rarely says "who he loves," he just calls that person "you." Now we have a real killer called "Killer." The last song is a macabre type, Simmons song called "War Machine." He seems to sing in view of the anti-Christ and pats a dark picture of Armageddon.

CREATURES OF THE NIGHT — KISS (Casablanca)

Kiss is finally back to what they were, and are doing what they use to do even better. That is playing hard, loud, bang your head against the wall and scream your guts out of type of rock—roll. And isn’t this just what we’ve wanted from the fearsome foursome? After their 9th release ( Alive II ), Kiss seemed to lean more towards pop—styled and sweet, bubble gum type melodies about good ( no, not street walking ) girls. The solo albums showed lead vocalist and rhythm guitarist Paul Stanley and lead guitarist Ace Frehley had grown apart. They had entrenchedly in the hard rock pattern. Paul did include a ballad, though, and Ace contributed an instrumental on his effort. Ex-drummer Peter Crisman leaned towards jazz fusion and blues, and know one really knows what bassist Gene Simmons is ever into. After this, they combined some of their writing talents but were working with different styles. This was the reason behind the wide variety of music on "Dynasty," "Unmasked," and "The Elder." On "Creatures Of The Night" lead vocalist Stanley sings on only four cuts while Simmons graces us with five. ( This seems to be the only major problem here.) Newest member, drummer Eric Carr, does not stick at all and Ace had enough trouble doing his guitar work as he was involved in a car accident which kept him from making the trip to L.A. with his bandmates. His backing vocals ( no lead this time ) and fret work were recorded in his half—million dollar studio that sits in the side of the hill back in his Connecticut mansion.

Side one takes off hard and fast with the title cut, "Creatures Of The Night," followed by "Saint And Sinner." Next is "Keep Me Coming," one of the best three songs of the album. Although Al’s LP’s are too much energy to his vocals: It’s a real credit to the band and he’s still one of the best with his wide vocal range. He keeps it flowing on "Carry On," his follow-up Geene as he tries to get out of this "Rock And Roll Hell."

Side two starts off with a great pair of songs. Simmons gives us "Marrakesh Express" with a great songwriting job. "I Still Love You." Paul is next with his heavy-metal styled love song called "I Still Love You." The style here is the same as his other love songs from previous LP’s. He rarely says "who he loves," he just calls that person "you." Now we have a real killer called "Killer." The last song is a macabre type, Simmons song called "War Machine." He seems to sing in view of the anti-Christ and pats a dark picture of Armageddon.

Carriers' drumming reminds so much of the late John Bonham's it's unbelievable. And what more can be said of the Stanley—Frehley guitar duo that hasn't been said before? They are two truly fine musicians.

For excellent, no holds barred rock-n-roll, and for going back to their good ol' Kiss style, they deserve a ★★★★★

REMATCH—SAMMY HAGAR(Geffen)

Somebody found out that Sammy Hagar is an excellent performer and a great songwriter; Geffen figured that people would like to hear old songs by Sammy. The trouble is that "Standing Hampton" was his first effort for Geffen albums. If people bought his old albums, Geffen would make a fortune. It's a good deal. Let's make an album of Sammy's best songs for our label! Great, another album full of re-releases. What a rip off! Geffen is taking advantage of Hagar and his fans. But I know most people will still buy "Rematch" instead of the old LP’s. I guess Sammy still deserves something though.

This rating reflects nothing on Sammy's artistic abilities. So, here's the score.

MORE COMMENTS

Christine Mcvie of Fleetwood Mac has some real heavyhanded up for guest spots on her upcoming solo album. Some stars include Paul McCartney, George Harrison and the late John Lennon and the Starship crew. Paul McCartney is expected to release another project within the next two to three months. What's that? Rumor has it that Cheap Trick may be releasing new material soon. Will it be live or studio? Well, it could be some type of hint, the band has been in Japan again. Bedrock. If this is true, it has been kept under wraps, at least a double album. Cheap Trick is far too good to give us single albums of their amazing live shows.

Athletic department on the go

BY BUNNY REED

The Boone Campus athletic department is actively supported by three faculty members: Harold Johnson, Athletic Director; Larry Hughes, coach; and John Smith, coach.

The duties of organizing the department activities are the responsibility of Johnson, and include various activities such as scheduling games; hiring referees, umpires, coaches; organizing staff for games held at Boone; planning concessions and half-time activities; participating in the “Bear Club” formed for the purposes of seeking donations from the community for the athletic department; providing information for programs; scheduling tournaments; and maintaining transportation equipment.

Johnson also prepares the athletic department budget and is a member of the Athletic Executive Committee for the state of Iowa. His duties include participating on the Scholarship Committee and preparation of eligibility sheets for the National Junior College Athletic Association and Department of Public Instruction reports each quarter for each student involved.

In addition to his responsibilities in the athletic department, Johnson teaches Principles of Biology, Biology of Animals, and Invertebrate Zoology. He has been teaching for 24 years. Johnson taught and coached at the Boone Junior College when it was at the now-closed Franklin School, before the college became part of the DMACC association in the fall of 1966. Johnson's wife, Sandi, is a secretary in the Business Office and they have two children at home: Chad, 12, and Angela, 10. Johnson enjoys hunting, fishing, and restoration of old cars, with current projects including a Model A Ford and a 1947 Pontiac.

Johnson encourages participation in sports as well as support from the general student body. "I would like to see more student support at games, of course. Athletes attending DMACC must see themselves first as students and then as athletes," suggests Johnson, in addressing the subject of the conflicts the athletes occasionally face between scheduled class time and games. "To 100 students in this campus are here for athletic programs, and this helps us maintain our current level of curriculum. Although athletics are definitely an advantage to the entire student body, athletics should not be the single most important aspect of college life.

Larry Hughes teaches all the Boone Campus physical education courses, a class for the fall quarter, and an Introduction to Physical Education class in the spring quarter. Hughes received his Bachelor’s degree from Drake University, and his Master's from the University of Missouri. He has been teaching for 15 years, being on the faculty of DMACC in 1968-71, and returning to DMACC in 1977.

Hughes is married to Nancy Hughes, proprietor of the Memory Lane Mercantile and Candy Shoppe in Boone.

They have five children: Amy, 19, a freshman at Iowa State University; Andee, 17, a senior at Boone High School; Joel, 15, a freshman at high school; Jeff, 13, a seventh grader; and Jacqueline, 12, a sixth grader. Hughes enjoys fishing and camping in his leisure time, as well as activities with the active Hughes children.

On the subject of school support at all DMACC athletic events, Hughes expresses that support from students is a mutual concern for all extracurricular activities, and it is particularly difficult for Boone Campus students to support the Bears in events that do not have a large enough interest to support their efforts.

There have been a lot of athletes who are involved in other areas, including the Student Senate. We must keep this in mind and continue to encourage student participation in various athletic events. Further, Hughes suggests that support is needed from all students for all types of activity. "Athletes have a responsibility to become part of the school to encourage more participation in their endeavors. Athletes need to support sports, parties, and other events to have a reciprocal support from the student body. This year we seem to have a lot of athletes who are involved in other areas, including the Student Senate. We must keep this in mind and encourage more student participation in various athletic events."

John Smith handles the Baseball teams for the Boone Campus, as well as teaching classes in accounting. Smith graduated from Southern State College at Springfield, South Dakota in 1967, and has taught for 20 years, the last 18 years in Boone. His wife is a reading aid at Page School in Boone, they have two boys, ages 12 and 18.

The Bears lead throughout the game against Iowa Lakes, only to see the lead disappear in the middle of the second half, to take a 76-71 win.

Mike Thomas led the Bears with 32 points in this game. In the game against Mason City, the Bears were down during the majority of the contest, only to fight back and tie the score at 63 each. However, Mason City’s flush line clattered the charge to gain a 68-65 victory over the Boone Campus Bears.

Jay Sawyer put in a fine performance with 20 points and 10 rebounds as the Bears fell to 6-2.

Cheerleaders seek student support

BY BUNNY REED

The Bears Cheerleading Squad seeks to motivate each student to participate in the cheer routines at all DMACC athletic events.

"We need your support to win," claims Cheerleading Advisor, Mrs. Jinny Silberhorn. "The cheerleaders perform with more animation and spirit when they can feel the crowds are with them in each cheer." This need for student body participation was the theme of a recent Pep Assembly held in the student union.

In addition to acting as advisor to the cheerleaders, Jinny is an instructor in the Learning Center and a part-time instructor in the English Department, teaching composition,语法, and the George Washington and DMACC Admissions Counselor and Director of Student Activities.

A native of Iowa State University, with a major in English and Speech, Jinny has been employed at the Boone Campus since 1972. The Silberhorns have three children: Aaron, 16, a high school student; Joel, 15, a freshman at high school; Jeff, 13, a seventh grader; and Jacquie, 12, a sixth grader. Jinny enjoys tennis, reading, and swimming in her time away from the campus.

Pep rally encourages
Student support for campus teams in competition play

IT WAS PEP RALLY TIME in the student lounge of DMACC, Boone Campus, and the cheerleaders, under the direction of Jinny Silberhorn, planned the activities. Both the Boone Bears and Lady Bears teams were introduced, a Twinkie contest was held, and everyone had a good time. UPPER LEFT, some of the members of the Boone Bears are introduced. (Sorry about those who were too spread out to be included in the picture!). From the left are Jon Jackson, Al Abrahamson, Kevin Davidson, Larry Johnston, Jerry Sawyer, Mike Thomas, Wayne Owen, Allen Lee, Steve Russell, Dan Nichols, Le Craig McGuire. CENTER LEFT: the Lady Bears are introduced to the fans. From the left are Sherry Fischer, Lisa Bell, Canda Ott, Pam Marnin, Eva Vaughn, Julie Johnson and Carol Godfrey. LOWER RIGHT; the cheerleaders, Kay Kelso, Kim Kelso, Shelley Sams, Jenny Westberg, Laurie Good and Deanne Mills, lead the cheers. BELOW, Julie Johnson has a Twinkie crammed into her mouth by a blindfolded teammate during the Twinkie Contest. The goal was to see who could consume the most of the goodies in the given length of time. All students, faculty and staff are encouraged to attend the games of the teams and give them their support.

guess his friends knew him well. Official report says, “...heart failure due to cocaine intolerance.” An extremely sad ending.

Some great new books are out just in time for Christmas. For Stones fans there are three new ones to add to the mountain of RS books already out. “The Rolling Stones: The Final Tour” by Phillip Kamin and Peter Goddard. “Keith Richards: Life Of A Rolling Stone” by Barbara Charone and Mandy Aftels. “Death Of A Rolling Stone: The Brian Jones Story.” Heavy metal was here before punk, new wave, and disco. It was kept alive during these fads and will keep going long after these have died out completely. This has prompted photographer Ross Halfin and writer Peter Makowid to put out a book titled, “Heavy Metal: The Power Age.” It features every hard rock band from AC-DC to ZZ Top. The cover features the late, great Randy Rhodes. Till next month: “There’s a lady who’s sure all that glitters is gold...” (It must be another Zeppelin album).

Being a lounge lizard is a way of life

By DOROTHEA SCOTT

So you're not in class at noon, but you're trapped in the college building, because of your class schedule for mornings and afternoons? How do you keep from wanting that precious free time? Looking around the huge lounge area, one wonders if there can be any doubt that time is spent relaxing. One has to grant the student's need to unwind in order to keep alert in the next class, as well as to recover from the tensions of classes past.

Looking closer, however, one can see the bowls of soup and creased brows of people deep in textbooks and writing papers, oblivious to the prevailing noises: voices and music from the television, conversation and laughter emanating from staff members and numbers of students sitting at the many round tables, and vocal comments accompanying the "ping" and "pong" of the little plastic white balls "thumped" on the "table" of the billiards, and clicks and buzzes of the electronic games. Concerning her noontime activities, Diana, a new mother from Typing II class said, "I use the vending machine. That's the only second break I've taken this quarter." She was sitting at one of the tables talking to another student and drinking a chilled can of V-8 vegetable juice from one of the several dispensing machines.

Jay, who has classes through noon with his break from 1 to 2 p.m., uses the lounge as a place to study and to relax with pinball or Foosball. He sometimes eats in the lounge and prefers the student-run snack bar to the vending machines. The vending machines there are 10 with the one that grabs your paper dollar and in exchange spews out the metal coins the other automated servants need in order to give forth their goodies. These include cold drinks such as white and chocolate milk, vegetable or fruit juices, diet and regular pop. There are also hot drinks such as coffee and tea with button-punched sugar or "cream", hot chocolate and chicken-flavored soup in addition to sandwiches including ham and egg, ten salty snacks and 10 sweet desserts, as well as Granola and candy bars. There is ice cream and crisp red apples, and we won't mention the cigarette dispenser.

Yed comes to the lounge mainly to eat or to watch TV, playing pool and "tennis"(on the table), and, "Sometimes I spend two hours." Labib can enjoy the lounge's facilities for a few more months, before he will transfer to Ames.

About the snack bar—it serves hamburgers, hot dogs and drinks from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. daily. Currently, it also offers nacho chips with melted cheese. A sign advertises "fresh squeezed apple juice." Not really? Yes, really. Local apples and a home press.

Eva, a Recreation major, explained that the Rec Club sponsors the snack bar, run by work-study students, as one of their many fund-raising projects, to help finance their trip to the Nationals, where they learn of career opportunities in their field. The snack bar itself is a bright yellow and red portable counter loudly decorated with the slogan "Life is a Variety of Choices." It seems highly apropos, for the DMACC Lounge is all of that.

PLAYING POOL seems to be a favorite pastime of many of the DMACC pool sharks as seen above.

One large expanse of wall, painted with a waterfall scene by some past Rec Club students, makes a background for the popular billiards. Labib, dark-eyed and pleasant, a Palestinian from Jordan, finds respite in the billiards from his pre-engineering studies. He may spend an hour a day playing pool and "tennis"(on the table), and, "Sometimes I spend two hours."
