Natl' Shakespeare Co. to perform 'She Stoops to Conquer' March 26

In this scene from "She Stoops to Conquer", Kate barmaid in an inn rather than the proper young woman he has come to woo, finds his tongue and hands untied. See story for details.

The National Shakespeare Company is coming to Boone Campus this month!

The New York City based touring repertory company will present Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" Monday, March 26, at 8 p.m. in the auditorium.

This is a rare opportunity to see a national group of professional actors perform in Boone as part of a Boone Campus sponsored event!

Even though it was written 200 years ago, "She Stoops to Conquer" still remains fresh, upbeat, and delightful to audiences.

The comedy deals with Charles Marlowe's bumbling attempts to woo Kate Hardcastle. Young Marlowe is tongue tied much of the time, and is the cause for many of the laughs.

Kay Mueller, Boone Campus speech and drama instructor, said, "I'm very excited about the show. I'm looking forward to a wonderful performance that the audience will enjoy."

George Silverthorn, director of student services, added "I hope many people from the community, as well as DMACC students, join us for this event. This is a positive step toward including the community in Boone Campus events."

The National Shakespeare Company's one-night appearance in Boone is part of its U.S. tour. The Company tours coast to coast during its September to May season.

Reserved, limited seating is available, so you should act now to reserve seats. Tickets for "She Stoops to Conquer" are on sale for $5 in advance, and $7 at the door. They may be obtained at the Boone Campus Library, Boone State Bank, Citizen's National Bank, and Hawk-eye Federal Savings Bank, all in Boone.

The National Shakespeare Company was created in 1963 by Philip Meister, a New York producer and director, and actress Elaine Sulk. Its offices are located in a five-story brownstone in New York's theatre district. The building, known as The Cubiculo, is a popular off-off Broadway theatre space used for performance and rehearsal by a number of theatre organizations.

The National Shakespeare Company and The Cubiculo produce new works of theatre, dance, and music in cooperation with some of New York's most talented new artists.

And how did you cope with the ice storm?

By members of Journalism 120 Class
Justine Martin, Scot Ostendorf, Pat Sillik, and Raquel Zortman

The city of Boone and most of central Iowa received one of the worst ice storms in years this past week. Although the moisture was a welcome sight, the manner in which it arrived was not quite as popular.

With ice and sleet accompanied by high winds, many power lines snapped, causing widespread electrical outages. Falling tree branches, downed power lines, and treacherous roads made traveling virtually impossible March 7, 1990.

DMACC-Boone Campus, the Boone public schools and most area schools did not conduct classes Thursday, March 8, due to power outages. And although Boone Campus had electricity restored by Friday, much of Boone was still without power. Two Des Moines schools, Drake University and Grand View College, could not yet conduct classes Friday.

With crews from Iowa Electric Light & Power, and the Rural Electric Cooperative still working long hours to restore energy, the Boone Campus mass communications class asked many Boone Campus students, teachers, and staff members how they coped with the recent ice storm and the inconveniences it caused. Here are their responses:

Tiffany Cornelison: I was undisturbed.
Sandi Johnson: I went out and took pictures.
Karen Wagner: We stayed with friends.
Doris Wickman: We had relatives staying with us.
George Silberhorn: We had the fireplace going, and used flashlights, and propane lanterns.
Martha Ballestine: I didn't have much of a problem.
Bill Bruce: I went out and bought a CD player, and played CD's all night long.
Vicki Sieve: We had a great time.
Sandy Cannon: I had a great time driving with all the streetlights out.
Maria Minney: We needed review time, and school was cancelled.

Chris Mayer: Driving was nerve-racking.

Eric Brendeland: I slept.

David Hampe: Read in candlelight.

Brad Stehr: Scraping my windows was frustrating.

Teresa Becker: We tried to get along, used a gas stove, and read books to my children to keep them entertained.

Jenny Blanshan: I dreamed about seeing Ostie again to show him my spreadsheet.

Jenni Price: Really well. My husband and I played games with my kids; it was just plain relaxing.

Kris Eschliman: I thoroughly enjoyed the storm because I never lost power or heat, and got two days off from work and school.

Mark Whitchel: Lit some candles and read some books.

Kurt Hill: Lost most of electricity, and moved in with relatives.

J.B. Slight: Played pool.

Bill Blanshan: Lifted weights.

Mark Whitchel: Lit some candles and read some books.

Kurt Hill: Lost most of electricity, and moved in with relatives.

J.B. Slight: Played pool.

Bill Blanshan: Lifted weights.

Brian Hood: A friend stayed over.

Suzanne Kestel: I tried to stay warm.

Doug Peterson: I worked in the dark.

Chris Bushore: Dodged trees, electricity.

Jay Birks: Taught friends how to play poker.

Corey Evespestad: The electricity was out, so I stayed at a friend's house.

Here is the scene on one street in Boone following the ice storm March 7, 1990. Numerous branches and power lines snapped because of the weight of the ice. Clean-up efforts started almost immediately, although power outages caused DMACC's Boone, Ankeny, and Urban campuses to close Thursday.

Burkhead provides top quality photos for student newspaper

You may not recognize the name, but you will probably recognize the face. The person you see snapping all the pictures around campus is Lori Burkhead. Lori is the sole photographer for The Bear Facts.

"I really enjoy photographing anything, everything and everyone," Lori said.

She received her first camera as a Christmas present from her parents at age 11, and has loved photography ever since.

Lori is a 1978 Boone High graduate, and now is a sophomore majoring in liberal arts here at Boone Campus.

Lori just recently landed a job at Boone Today as a part time photographer. She plans to transfer to Iowa State and major in photo-journalism. After that, she hopes to get a job with a major magazine.

"Life magazine would suit me fine," she chuckled.

"But no matter what my career may hold, I will focus on trying to be a more productive member to my family and society as a whole," she said.

"I really enjoy the small community atmosphere. It is enjoyable to live here at Boone," she said.

Jill Burkhart, journalism instructor, commented, "Lori is a very talented, diligent and dedicated student. I just know her future will be productive and prosperous."

Bears get ready for challenging season

By Brad Foytk
Sports Writer

The Bears are coming off their second best season (40-17) in the last 17 years. This year they hope to pick up where they left off when they go south on their spring trip. March 17, the Bears will visit Southern Kansas. Southern should be very competitive.

Lady Bears face rebuilding season

By Brad Foytk
Sports Writer

This year, the women's softball team is very optimistic in improving their record.

The Lady Bears begin practicing March 5. Their games will be played at the little league park in Boone. With only eleven players expected to go out and no returners, the Lady Bears are faced with a rebuilding season.

Coach Larry Hughes is optimistic about this year's team. He is disappointed with the turnout, but is pleased with the talent he has. "The Lady Bears' ace on the mound is Lori Ford. Ford, a 1985 Jefferson graduate, finished her high school career with a 45-15 record with only one loss her senior year. Ford was optimistic when she said, "The season should be fun and we should win a lot of games. We have a young team but a lot of talent." Ford will also play an important part in developing other pitchers. Jacque Hughes is the only player out of Boone and in her first year of collegiate softball. "We need a lot of work, but will have a decent team and a lot of fun," said Jacque.

Teacher Feature
Lueth happy with ‘highly dedicated’ students

By Mick Kawahara
Staff Writer

John Lueth, who currently teaches micro economics, macro economics, and introduction of business, is the subject of this month’s Teacher Feature.

Currently, John commutes from Ames to teach here at Boone Campus. He is working on his Ph.D. in economics at ISU.

John is in his second semester of teaching here, and is apparently enjoying it.

“I am very happy with my highly-dedicated students,” he commented.

Pertaining to Boone’s business climate, John said Boone has developed a lot recently.

“You can see that from the record high enrollment at Boone Campus,” he added.

He said Boone needs more development, and should be encouraging small business to locate here.

John grew up in Aweil, Sudan. He joined the army there and ended up as a colonel. Along the way, he also earned degrees in economics, political science, and military science.

He and his wife Trezena have eight children, ages 3 to 16.

In his spare time, you'll find John playing accordion, soccer, swimming, and volleyball.
