Mr. Schaeffer

ATTENTION
Students of BJC:

Teacher Feature

There is a problem on our campus that needs your immediate consideration. The pep assembly held last week was a pathetic exhibition of apathy of you, the students. The meeting at the H3 auditorium qualified as neither peppy nor a good assembly. This time is given to you as students so you can show your school spirit. If you don't have any then you don't belong here. The pep band started out with a great director and a great band at the beginning of the year but has weakened to a point that they haven't even had enough to play at two of our home games. The director is still there but what happened to the 75% of the band that we lost along the way. Any student who plays a band instrument belongs in our pep band. The band practices at 6:30 before each home game. Band members, get out and support your team!

Remember students, our team is out there fighting against teams who have been in business for years and also uses a recruiting system. The odds are terrific against our men, but they play their hearts out for a very apathetic student body. If you as students cannot keep your pep when the team is down you do not deserve the glories that will belong to the

With Valentines Day rapidly approaching, it was decided that our featured teacher should be a romanticist. After much contemplation, Mr. Charles Schaeffer was chosen as the one who fit this description the best (or maybe we should say the least.) He is categorically opposed to marriage for himself and feels that it is a wonderful institution to be avoided.

Mr. Schaeffer graduated from high school in Palmyra, Missouri. He did undergraduate work at Culver-Stockton College, a liberal arts school in Canton, Missouri that is the oldest co-educational college west of the Mississippi. According to Mr. Schaeffer, it is "120 acres of Christian atmosphere overlooking the Mississippi River. He received his masters degree in speech and drama from the University of Missouri. One year has been spent towards his Ph.D. at Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois. He has also taken a short course in religion from Howard University.

Mr. Schaeffer has taught for one year at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire. While in New Hampshire teaching, he traveled thousands of miles with the freshman debate team. They went to universities in Vermont, Maine, Pennsylvania and judged teams from Canada, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, and New York. After he began teaching in Boone, Mr. Schaeffer was asked to be a judge at the National Debate Tournament at West Point. In the One Act Play Festival at Dartmouth College, he was a judge. Not only does he teach prospective actors and debaters, he also acts himself. While at the University of Missouri, he was the leading actor in three plays.

Mr. Schaeffer is very fond of Boone Junior College and the students here. This is very evident because he turned down an offer to teach at an all-girl school in Missouri, to come here. The courses at Boone that he teaches are Basic Speech, Advanced Speech and Introduction to the Theatre. He also directs several very successful one act plays yearly. An active member of the Iowa Council of Teachers of Speech, Mr. Schaeffer used to be a board member and was one of the influencers leading to a reorganization movements. He is also a member of ISEA and NEA teachers organizations and has belonged to the National Speech Association of America.

Mr. Schaeffer was in the army and has been assigned to an anti-aircraft outfit to defend the city of Chicago and also attended a furnace firing school to learn how to fire a furnace by hand.

The cheerleaders should be commended for their loyalty and also those students who do support the team. I hope at the time of our next printing I can commend the whole student body on their school spirits.

Y.D.'s

The next Young Democrats' meeting is scheduled for February 23 at 7:30. Everyone is invited to attend this meeting.

Linda Hyson, Betty Briggs, Guasi Hamed, and Keith Rasmussen represented BJC at the Y.D. district caucus held at Drake University on February 4.

Paul Franzenberg, State treasurer, was the main speaker at the meeting. He described the two party system in Iowa and explained the Democratic philosophy. His speech centered around the statement, "Among the Young Democrats are the hopes of Iowa's future. The challenge is great but the rewards are greater."

Be sure and attend our last two home games on February 16 and 17.

After defining a blacksmith, a tradesman in fabrication or shaping of metal parts in the forge, Mr. Schaeffer declared that he is a trained blacksmith. He is from a German family and they have been blacksmiths for five or six generations. His family consists of his parents, two sisters and one brother. His brother is a licensed pilot and one sister has traveled with American's oldest living-folk theatre based here in Iowa called the Schaeffer Players. They are all married and live in their home town except him.

During his lifetime, Mr. Schaeffer has had many varied jobs. He worked part of his way through undergraduate school by scrubbing floors in the girls dormitory cafeteria, he has been a lifeguard at a swimming pool, during World War II, he worked in a shoe factory rebuilding army shoes, and he has even been a grocery store clerk and carry-out boy. However, he has always wanted to be a teacher and enjoys teaching so much because it gives him an opportunity to be in contact with young people.

Some of Mr. Schaeffer's outside interests are horseback riding, swimming and reading non-fiction. His favorite spectator sport is football and he also went out for football in high school but was too light in weight to play.

The main pet peeve of Mr. Schaeffer is, "People who don't use their two good brain cells and are always unhappy. Happiness comes from within and each person is responsible for himself." He also doesn't like owning material things as they tend to tie a person down. Taking care of things requires much emotional energy. Traveling is not very high on the "like" list but he has still traveled quite extensively. Mr. Schaeffer doesn't like to drive cars either and has owned only two in his lifetime that began in 1926.

Although opposed to marriage for himself, Mr. Schaeffer does like children and is the Godfather of a nine-month old girl.

One of the new students at BJC this semester is really just returning. She is Mrs. Marilyn (Smith) Croxen and is in her fourth semester at BJC. In 1961 she attended BJC and was editor of Bear Facts. She was Miss BJC that year. Her husband is in the Naval Reserve.

At present she is employed by the Boone County Hospital in admissions. She is in Liberal Arts.

Mrs. Croxen is a welcome member to the Bear Facts staff.

Love in a Cave

Many years ago when woman wore long hair and man carried clubs, (I think they call this the Paleozoic Era), the art of mating was strictly a one-sided affair---MAN'S!! This was probably due to the fact that man was short and stocky, with a humped-back, giving him very little sex appeal with which to attract the female gender. Man couldn't utter sweet tender words of love to her even if he was attracted to her, as his vocabulary was limited to "ugh," "glub," and possibly, according to his age, an occasional "OH-H."

These handicaps, however, did not hinder man from getting his mate, for when his maturation was complete, man sat in the door of his cave and began his watch for the mate of his choice.

All of a sudden there she was, the girl who would be his slave for the rest of her life, the girl who, for only a moment, would make him sit up straight and take notice!

Mr. Cave-man didn't need much strategy in plotting his warfare, as long as his club was handy. For after his first glance, he was ready, willing, and capable of wielding his club over the young beauty's head and dragging her into his cave.

Love in a Ballroom

I left her at the platform so she could catch the pneumatic tube home. It had been wonderful that night. Our itinerary included a visit to a small asteroid that had been deserted centuries ago. When we first landed the most surprising thing about the planet were the buildings that had been left to the ravages of time. The first room that we came to as we entered the saging portals of an old brownstone was a ballroom. The remnants of past dances clung to the room like giant cobwebs. The light fell thru the windows into the gloom, piercing the darkness. Evelyn turned to me, silent as the dust.

How many times had young lovers met here in the days when bright jewels spun across the floor only to slip into the shadows of the great room?

Walking hand in hand we strolled over the deserted grounds.

The hours rolled by and soon we departed the planet, leaving behind the echos of the hall and its saging grandeur.

Was our love eternal as the ballroom on that deserted planet?

History of Valentines Day

The celebration of St. Valentine's Day began as early as the seventh century. Valentine was a pagan priest who was converted to Christianity and became a bishop. The story is told that at the time the Roman Emperor Claudius had decided to abolish the institution of marriage because he felt that husbands did not make good soldiers. Valentine considered such policy against the spirit of God and human nature. He secretly married young lovers, but not for long. He was arrested, imprisoned and brutally murdered on February 14, 269 AD.

The celebration continued and in the 17th century the Valentine card was introduced. It has now been firmly established as a token between young lovers.

Love is the delightful interval between meeting a beautiful girl and discovering that she looks like a haddock.

Love On A Park Bench

After five short years of courting Mary, John has finally decided to pop the question. The stars are brightly shining as our young love-birds stroll quietly through the park. A gentle breeze is rustling through the trees - it's all terribly romantic!

John speaks, "It's a beautiful night but no more beautiful than you, my darling. Oh, you are a vision of loveliness."

"Why, John, that's the nicest thing you've ever told me. No, I guess it's the second nicest thing. Last week you told me my hair was like corn silk. That was just too sweet. And then there was the time you said that my eyes were even more beautiful than your Siamese cat's. You are just too, too wonderful," Mary replies.

Well! After a romantic evening, John still hasn't popped the big question. Will he? And are Mary's eyes really more beautiful than John's Siamese cat's or is he just saying that? Find out in our next exciting episode of "Love on a Park Bench."

As you remember, in our last exciting episode, John and Mary were strolling quietly - well, not really quietly but rather semi-quietly- through the park. They have now reached a park bench and this is where our scene begins.

"Would you like to sit down, my sweetheart?" asks John sweetly.

"Only if you would, darling," replies Mary.

"It's up to you, dear. I'll do whatever you do!" says John.

"Please, you are the man and you must make the decisions, sweetums," Mary replies.

"Listen Mary, sit down before I lose my temper," orders John.

"Oh John, you're all that I adore in a man. You are so aggressive and all-powerful. Of course I'll sit down if you want me to." So they both sit down and are silent, enjoying the wonderful evening and just being in love.

Suddenly, John says, "Mary, there is something I must ask you!"

"We interrupt this program to bring you a special report on the newest development in drugs - L.D headache capsules. You take just one and you need never bother with another. You will be completely over all headache problems. In fact, you'll be over all problems, including the problem of living. Try them today. Please wait until our program is over. Now back to "Love on a Park Bench."

Mt. Condemnedus

Now that things are active again around Mt. Condemnedus, Publius has come out of hibernation. I didn't see my shadow so you know what that means.

It's that time of the year again when everyone's thoughts turn to one certain aspect of life. It has been around since the creation and will probably be around until the end. If you don't know by now that I am talking about love then you need a psychiatrist. I think it would be appropriate if we took a glance at famous love affairs in history.

The most famous female lover was Cleopatra. As the story goes Cleopatra started out with Julius Caesar. Caesar was fifty-four to Cleopatra's twenty-one, comparable to Justice Douglas in the age department. Caesar visited Egypt from October to June settling affairs of state. It was a boy so Cleopatra now regarded herself as practically engaged. Caesar might have married her, but he had a wife at home. There's always something like that. Cleo then picked up with Mark Anthony, a fat man with a beard. They hoped to conquer Asia and eventually rule the World. It was mostly a business arrangement as he needed cash and she needed

As you recall, the situation is very tense. John is in the process of asking a very important question. Let's hear what that question is.

"Mary," says John, "we've been going together now for about five years. There's something very important that I have to ask you. Of course you know how very special you are to me. It is rather difficult to put into words just how I feel."

"Oh John - Yes, yes, yes. Of course I'll marry you. That is what you're getting at, isn't it?" Mary asks.

"Well - well - oh - no - but it isn't too bad of an idea. Okay - let's get married," John decides.

"Oh John, you're wonderful," coos Mary.

So ends "Love on a Park Bench." We hope you have a lovely, wonderful Happy Valentine Day!

good average. He let some of them live, for those were the days of chivalry, when knighthood was in flower. Henry's first wife was Catherine of Aragon, who was not much fun. She was glum and aloof and always mending. Her only child was Bloody Mary, who was nothing to brag about -- she wore mittens and had neuralgic headaches.

Anne Boleyn was younger and prettier and she was not aloof. She gave birth to Queen Elizabeth in 1533 and was beheaded by an elegant two-handed broadsword. The rest of Henry's wives were run-of-the-mill. Jane Seymour had Edward VI and died of excitement. He led a very exciting life.

THE ROLE OF THE JUNIOR COLLEGE

'The junior college has a critically important job to do in the education of our citizens. It is essential that they be given the resources and moral support necessary to do the job well,' stated Governor John Connally of Texas, at the recent dedication of the Technical Education Building at San Antonio College. The governor also said that 'Today 38.5 per cent of all freshmen and sophomore students in Texas colleges are enrolled in its 33 junior colleges, and by 1970 half the students entering Texas colleges will be entering the junior colleges. This is clear evidence that our young high-school graduates are aware of some of the built-in advantages of beginning their higher education in the two-year colleges. Among the advantages,' he continued, 'are the junior colleges' offering two-year terminal programs for students not going on to a four-year college career while at the same time offering transfer programs for students who do wish to complete four years; recruiting faculty for the sole purpose of teaching, and for whom advancement does not depend on their ability to obtain research projects; being located in most cases within commuting distance; and comparing favorably in the level of instruction with that at four-year institutions where freshmen and sophomores are often taught by graduate students.

'In addition to these advantages for the student, communities are finding that the junior college serves as a technical institute for the community,' he added, 'while it offers educational fulfillment for its young people and continuing education for its adults.'

BLABBER'S TIPS FOR THE SINGLE MAN

Follow these tips men:

Always be a great guy to all the girls so as to maintain a good waiting list.

Never date the same girl more than twice in a row, for that could lead complications, like marriage.

Always be a little late for your date, so she has to wait for you.

Never spend a great sum on a girl for this could lead to problems like joint checking accounts and the like.

Always plan the places to go so she cannot break down your strict code of moral values.

By following these tips men, you should remain single for the rest of your life. Fail at any one and your life is in HER own hands.

DEAR BLABBER

Dear Blabber,

What is wrong with kids today? I am 18 and a college freshman. I went to a teen dance one night and felt suddenly like an old man. At that dance, there were more children of age 12 and 13 years than any other age group. Why can't these kids stay home where they belong?

Feels as old as Jack Benny

Dear Jack,

Welcome to the world! Where have you been for the last three or four years that this problem has existed? The kids today are at least a half a decade ahead of themselves. They think they are mature but are closer to the stroller than maturity.

Blabber

Dear Blabber,

I have a problem! I am a boy who is 12 years of age and in the seventh grade. A certain girl in my school told me she likes me but I have a few bad habits that bother her. I smoke (only two packs a week), drink (no more than a six pack at one time), and run around with the wrong crowd. My problem is this: Does she have any right to tell me how much I can drink or smoke and who I run around with?

A good kid at heart

Dear Good-hearted kid,

If your heart is good, that's all that counts in our society today for IN YOUR HEART, YOU KNOW YOU'RE RIGHT.

Blabber

THE PESSIMIST

Nothing to do but work,
Nothing to eat but food;
Nothing to wear but clothes
To keep one from going nude.

Nothing to breathe but air,
Quick as a flash 'tis gone;
Nowhere to fall but off,
Nowhere to stand but on.

Nothing to comb but hair,
Nowhere to sleep but in bed;
Nothing to weep but tears,
Nothing to bury but dead.

Nothing to sing but songs;
Ah, well, alas! alack!
Nowhere to go but out,
Nowhere to come but back.

Nothing to see but sights,
Nothing to quench but thirst;
Nothing to have but what we've got;
Thus thro' life we are cursed.

Nothing to strike but a gait;
Everything moves that goes.
Nothing at all but common sense
Can ever withstand these woes.

BEN KING

At composing time I was informed that there is going to be a Valentine Dance. It will be very informal. The time and place has not been decided so details will be posted on the board.

Love is said to be blind, but I know lots of fellows in love who can see twice as much in their sweethearts as I can.

The library has four new pictures on the wall across from the checkout desk.

The Young Democrat Teen hop was a great financial success as it netted the club over $400. The crowd was the largest I have seen at any teenhop with the final count being 827. Since the rumbles were such a great success, it is hoped that a return engagement can be arranged.

Love is like the measles; we can have it but once, and the later in life we have it, the tougher it goes with us.

Those girls who went to Des Moines to the SISEA Convention had a mixup in rooms that ended with the girls staying in the bridal suite of the Hotel Ft. Des Moines.

Sign attached to car of newlyweds: "From here to maternity".

Mrs Barquist has found a picture in a textbook that was turned in to her. It is of three small children. If the picture belongs to you see Mrs Barquist.

All graduating sophomores will be excused from classes on February 20 at 11:00 and will report to Room 106 for cap and gown measurement.

The next monthly Delta Tau meeting will be held on March 7.

Money will say more in one moment than the most eloquent lover can say in years.

Arabian Culture Comes to Boone

Ghazi Mohammed Abdul-Hamid comes from the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan. This country has a constitutional monarchy which is headed by King Hussain. Since the climate is much like California with a great deal of warm weather, the main occupation is farming. Because Bethlehem is located in this country the tourist trade is quite lucrative. The capital of Jordan is Amman where the state university is located.

The main language of Jordan is Arabic while the secondary language is English. Both languages are required study in high school, which goes through the twelfth grade.

Ghazi comes from a family of eight sisters and six brothers. He was raised in the city of Rammallah near Jerusalem. He attended a Quaker mission school so that he could further study English. He graduated from high school in 1960 and went to work in Kuwait for the Minister of Finance in the oil division. While he worked for six years as an oil inspector he came in contact with Paul Ghetty as well as many other American, British, and Japanese oil companies. Ghazi has traveled extensively through Europe and Asia with Austria being his favorite place to visit.

Ghazi arrived at Kennedy Airport on January 21 and came directly to Ames with plans of attending Iowa State. It was suggested that he go to a smaller school first so he could get more individual help. Rosemary Runyon, a BJC graduate, suggested that he attend our college.

Ghazi was quite impressed by the friendliness of Boone and especially the J.C. students. Although undecided as to a particular phase of future work, he hopes to enter some field of Business Administration.

During the interview, Ghazi said, "I wish to thank all my new friends, my professors and especially Dean Abbott for the help they have given me."

Ghazi lives at 527 Boone Street with Mr. and Mrs. William Ray, ". . . who have been a great help for me."

South American Students Visit B.J.C.

BJC has had some visitors this past week from Argentina. They are observing classes at schools in the area.

Anna Mariá Gallardón comes from Buenos Aires, Argentina. Her father is a sculptor, who restores monuments all over the world. She has two older brothers, one in school and one working. She has plans to be a Certified Public Accountant in the future. She has been observing classes mostly at Woodward High School.

Lilna Orsili comes from Neuguen, Argentina where her father is a farmer. She teaches the mentally retarded and plans to attend the State University at Buenos Aires where she will study medicine.

The third visitor is Elogardo Colonako from Buenos Aires, where his father is an X ray technician. He is an only child. His family has a summer home at Peugeot. Elogardo has done most of his observations at Woodward High School and plans to be a lawyer.

The schools are set up differently in Argentina with classes running from March until November. They have their "summer" vacation from December through February. When a student graduates from high school their he has an equivalent to a Junior College background, high school would thus run through the fourteenth grade.

Emma Prieto said of them, "They are all three very bright students and we are fortunate to have them here as visitors."

On Honesty

The Young Republicans were represented at the Lincoln Day Dinner held at Veteran's Memorial Auditorium on February 11 in Des Moines. Those from BJC who attended the $25 a plate dinner were the YR sponsor, Mr. Poyzer, Evie Coleman, Dave Hinz and Jay Munson.

The feature speaker at the dinner was Governor Love of Colorado. He spoke on the weaknesses of the present government program for less fortunate citizens and assailed the wastes connected with federal aid.

The YR's plan to attend the State Convention. The YR's next meeting will be March 1, 1967, to discuss plans to attend the State Convention at Des Moines on March 3 and 4. Everyone come.

B n P

Susan Colle broke some guys arm in Judo during the week of February 1 in Ames.

It is that time of the year again when people start talking about honesty. This comes about because of the celebration of "Honest Abe" Lincoln and "Cheery Tree" George Washington's birthdays. Of course since they are remembered for their honesty we naturally vow to be a little more honest this time of the year.

There is, of course, a degree of honesty or dishonesty. A person who finds a dime in the coin return of a telephone is a slight bit dishonest in taking it but not near as dishonest as the person who uses a sledge hammer to break into a pay telephone to take the money. Both are dishonest acts but according to the laws of society the latter is punishable by law.

No person is completely honest in its strictest interpretation while most abide by the laws of their society. Let's take for example those little white lies we all have told once or twice. You know what I mean, the ones that never hurt anyone. Have you ever told someone to answer the phone for you and tell the caller you aren't there? Sound familiar, well how about this: Have you ever told someone you had a headache just so you could leave a party? Aren't these dishonest.

Well you can see that these are on the extreme end of dishonesty, but what about the ones that aren't little and aren't white like cheating on a test or stealing from the company coffee fund or even cheating on ones husband or wife. These are definately dishonest but aren't they part of a great many persons lives? Are they part of yours and mine? Aren't we all dishonest to a certain degree. Think about these things as you promise to be a little bit more honest for the coming year.

IOWA MOUNTAINEERS TO SPONSOR EXPEDITION TO AFRICA

IOWA CITY, IOWA The "Mountains of the Moon" and Mt. Kilimanjaro in Eastern Africa will be the destination of an expedition to be sponsored by the Iowa Mountaineers during July and August, 1967.

Under the leadership of John Ebert, The University of Iowa mountain club will take a group to Africa for the first time, though the Iowa Mountaineers have made three mountain-climbing expeditions to South America, three to Europe, four to Alaska, and many trips to the Canadian Rockies and western United States.

Open to anyone interested in rugged and adventurous travel and in seeing eastern Africa, the expedition will feature sight-seeing trips to major game reserves, Lake Victoria, the Nile River, national parks and the Indian Ocean for those who do not wish to climb mountains. Photographers will have an opportunity to get pictures of the immense variety of African wild life on trips into the bush country by Land Rover vehicles and on hikes in scenic areas.

Mountain regions to be visited include the Ruwenzori range of Mountains of the Moon in Uganda; Mt. Kenya, which lies astride the equator in Kenya and is seldom climbed because of its sheer cliffs; and Mt. Kilimanjaro, the highest isolated volcanic peak in the world, with an elevation of 19,340 ft.

The expedition will leave New York City on July 25 by air for Nairobi, Kenya, by way of Frankfurt, Germany, with return by air possible at the end of three or four weeks under group flight arrangements. Round-trip fare via Lufthansa airline for those staying three weeks will be $780, with fares for longer stays being higher.

Hotel reservations for the first night in Nairobi will be made for the expedition, and members will make their own arrangements for lodging the rest of the trip, with available lodging ranging from camps to the most modern hotels.

Those interested in further information should write to East African Expedition, P.O. Box 163, Iowa City, Iowa 52240.

Dear Without,

by David John

When I walk through the recreation room about three thirty in the afternoon the view is appalling. I beg you to take a closer look the next time you go through when the place is empty. What you will see is an area littered with trash. Why is the recreation room turned into a trash dump everyday? Just what goes on during the course of the day that causes this situation? It is fairly evident that what should be going on isn't. It would be easy to say that just a few students are causing the difficulty, but we all know better than that. The only conclusion a person can come to is that the students of Boone Junior College are irresponsible.

I realize that calling the students irresponsible is harsh but the subject we are discussing isn't very nice either. The students obviously are unconcerned about the cleanliness of the recreation room because they are careless with their waste materials. Therefore we must agree that the students are irresponsible at least as far as the recreation room is concerned. This statement is valid and can be proven any day by a little observation.

There are implications to be noted from this neglect of our recreation room. It is is true that we are a product of our parents and by the behavior we display in public we are reflecting the training we received from our parents. It is not hard to see that there has been a flaw in the earlier training of most of our students who make use of the recreation room. Before you get your Irish up, just look around a little. I might add that this personal fault is not uncommon among a great many people. All is not lost though because the school is designed to compensate for what is not learned at home. Therefore we have a chance for a new learning experience.

A prominent bibliophile prided himself on his extensive library. He had books on every conceivable subject, but LOVE in all aspects was his particular collecting enthusiasm. One day as he was about to board a plane, he spotted a book entitled How to Hug, in the airport bookstore. Though his plane had been called, he was determined to have this collectors item. Pulling a handful of bills from his pocket, he hurriedly paid the salesgirl, grabbed the book and dashed for the plane. As he settled back to explore his $12.50 purchase he discovered that he had bought the sixth volume of an encyclopedia set.

We are now aware of our fault so what are we going to do about it? First we must realize that being a litter bug is a bad habit and in order to change this bad habit it will take some thinking and practice. Each time you find yourself with trash from a meal

Boone Junior College can definitely be called a progressive junior college. One of the factors contributing to this is the innovation of school visitation by Dean Abbott, Mr. Tays and Mr. Sturtz. These three are now visiting various high schools of the area in an attempt to encourage students to attend Boone Junior College.

Some of the schools involved include: Guthrie Center, Nevada, Collins, West Des Moines, Johnston, Adair-Casey, Panora-Linden, Earlham, Ballard Community and Ar-Ne-Va. This is just one of the many things contributing to the growth and expansion of Boone Junior College.

or a snack just put it in the proper container for waste. By doing this you will be displaying that you know there are waste containers available and that you are willing to use them. Thus you are on your way to correcting your bad habit. Your action will influence others to follow and we all will benefit as a result of this positive action. It will take personal initiative to correct this personal fault and after all it is our duty in the first place to perform this positive action. By the corrective action I have described we will improve our own personality and our over all image as a student body.

Our image as college students has been degraded because of our irresponsible actions in the recreation room. Consider the implications this has on our school image, our personality and our parents. I beg of you to take a hard look at this situation. If you are guilty of being a litter bug, take some positive action - throw that trash away next time. We can improve the situation and become responsible students in the recreation room; it only takes a little positive action on the part of every person.

That really you do care.

Just a little more kindness
To those you meet each day
And a little greater effort,
To aid them on their way.

Just a little more determined
To do the best you can,
To help some other fellow
And prove a friend to man.

Just a little bit more sunshine
Along life's weary road,
Just a little bit more ready
To ease another's load.

Just to work a little harder
For other people's good,
And to show a bit more friendship---
My friend, that's Brotherhood.

She leads a double life---hers and his.
When she wants his opinion, she gives it to him.
They are two minds with but a single thought---hers.
He has two chances of winning an argument, slim and None.

He always has the last word---he says, "I apologise."
She tames to be pleased.
He gave her an inch and now she's the ruler.
He's her altered ego.

It's a mutual partnership---he's the mute.
He's the Sovereign, Unconquerable, Supreme, Grand Potentate of his lodge, but he's missed three meetings because she won't let him go.

They were married for better or for worse.

done worse.

Men should figure the percentages before such a

THE LEGEND OF THE ADMEN

Hear the Legend of the Admen
Ere they conquered all creation.

In the Prophylactic forest,
On the shores of Coca Cola
Dwelt the Moxies in their wigwams---
Old Sapolio, the chieftain,
Pebcco, the grizzled prophet,
And the warriors, young and eager.

In the lodge of the old chieftain
With Uneeda, more than mother,
And Victrola, old and feeble,
Lived the warmest of the maidens,
Musterole, Sapolio's daughter---
Masterole, the Sunkist Chiclet.

All the young men sought her favor
Left their trophies at her wigwam,
Brought her Thermos skins for raiment,
Brought her Tarvia for ointment;
And sweet Musterole smiled on them---
Smiled on Vaseline and Pointex,
Smiled on Danderine and Jello,
Smiled on Listerine and Valspar--
Smiled but left them unrequited,
For her love she gave to no one--
Frigidaire alone she gave them.

Then from Multibestos mountains
From the tribe of the Texacos,
Came the young chief, Instant Postum,
Mightiest hunter in the forest,
All superb in strength and beauty.

Hey, Diddle, Diddle!
While the Democrats fiddle,
DeGaulle hums a
Neutralist tune;

Old Kosygin laughs
To see such sport,
And applauds as we
Race for the moon.

He it was who trapped the Kodak,
He, who shot the great Sears-Roebuck,
Eversharp his trusty hatchet,
Every Arrow had a Hotpoint.
On him gazed the Moxie maidens---
Nujol poured her glowing glances,
Bold Carbona sought to win him,
Zonite brought him luscious Pyrene;
But for Musterole yearned Postum.

Through the fields of ripe wheatena
Hand in hand the lovers wandered.
Seated there upon the White Rock,
By the rippling Cuticura---
Safe beneath Palmolive shadows
From the boughs they picked the Grapenut.
There they saw the sun descending.

Naught cared Postum for the night winds
Blowing through the Holeproof forest;
Musterole was there beside him,
To his bosom quick he drew her,
Held her to his manly bosom---
Whispered words with love a burning,
Told her how he'd caught the Sealpax,
Told her how he'd slain Bull Durham,
Told her how he'd trapped Ampico---
Boasted of his father's tepee,
With its sides of Mentholatum
And its rugs of soft Socony.

To him, Musterole aquiver,
Listened and her heart gave answer.
All the warmth of love she gave him
Gave her Rubberset affection
Gave her heart to Instant Postum.
Thus he won her---thus he took her.

Passed the years in quick succession;
Little Fairies came to bless them---
Gold-Dust twins and bright BVD,
Little Beechnut, Wrigley Spearmint,

Vici Kid and Pluto Water
Filled the wigwam with their laughter.

So they lived in happy union
Safe in peace and strong in warfare
And their progeny continues,
Finds a place in town and hamlet
Known and loved by every mortal--
All the tribes are held in honor.

This the legend I have told you.
E. W. Lord
